HAYMARKET RIOT Chicago, May 5.—Policeman John carrying out of said Intention must be presented in writing to the City Leary found an aged woman praying last night in an alley near Desplaines and Randolph streets. She explained that every year she visited the spot where her son was killed in the Hay-market riots, more than a quarter of a century ago, and offered a prayer n his memory.

Forty men who as policemen endeavored to quell the riot incited by anarchists on the West Side on the night of May 4, 1886, met vesterday at the Desplaines street station. After memorial services and reminiscences, they marched to the spot where seven of their comrades were killed and 79 injured by the explosion of a bomb.
